Back to work after 17 years
with help from the Senior Community Service Employment Program

Johnson County Sheriff’s Office Deputy Clerk
Bonnie Jaynes spent 17 years out of the workforce, but is now back on the job with assistance from the Senior Community Service Employment Program offered through Big Sandy Area Community Action Program.

Jaynes was working as a nurses aid with Mountain Comprehensive Care when she was forced out of work by a series of back surgeries and recovery periods over a number of years. “I had always worked, my whole life, and so it was hard to adjust,” she said. Jaynes said that being out of work left her feeling isolated and without purpose. “There was a lot of depression,” she said. Though she is feeling better now, she is still limited in what she is able to do.

When Jaynes regained her strength and was cleared to return to work, she was eager, but encountered some difficulties. “Seventeen years is a long time to be out of work,” she said. She explained that not only did she encounter the difficulties that many mature workers face when they look for work, but also that a large number of employers are asking for applications online and expect more computer skills, something she did not have a great deal of experience with before.

By chance, Jaynes stumbled upon information about the Senior Community Service Employment Program (SCSEP) offered through Big Sandy Area Community Action Program. “It turned out to be exactly what I needed,” she said. SCSEP assists jobseekers who are at least 55 years old and who have limited job prospects to return to the workforce. Program participants work 15 hours per week at community and government agencies and receive job training and educational opportunities designed to assist them in finding new, permanent work.

Through the program, Jaynes was able to meet with fellow senior jobseekers and learn some new job search skills that could help her overcome some of the difficulties she encountered. “I enjoyed it,” she said. “I went to the meetings and met new people. It really helped me. They understood what I needed and they understood my limitations.”

Jaynes was placed with the Johnson County Sheriff’s Office during her year with Summer is winding down and fall will soon be winding through the hills, bringing the busy LIHEAP season with it, so this is the perfect time of year to take stock of the tremendous work that our employees have accomplished over the last fiscal year.

The annual Community Needs Assessment, which surveys clients, potential clients, service providers and Board Members on the most needed services in our community revealed that once again health care was voted as the top needed service, followed by emergency assistance, housing, employment, and education. The stories we share with you in this issue will illustrate the work we have done and will continue to do to address the needs of our people.

The Senior Community Service Employment Program (SCSEP) just wrapped up a truly outstanding pro-gram year. Through the leadership of SCSEP Director Mike Goble, the program exceeded its service goal by eight people and provided 49,716 hours of service to our communities by going above and beyond their service hour goal by 3,102 hours.

Through our Garden Seed Program, we were able to serve 275 families this year by distributing $40 worth of vouchers to purchase seeds, plants, and fertilizer to qualifying families. Our Community Service Block Grant (CSBG) team also arranged for workshops in each of our service counties on how to setup a garden at home and how to preserve the fruits and vegetables grown.

We have more workshops on the way, so be sure to check our website or Facebook page for announcements, and please join us.

Our Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act (WIOA) Program held their annual Spring Job Fair in April. The relationships our WIOA team build and maintain all year ensure that we have strong and stable partnerships with a variety of employers and jobseekers. This year, 220 jobseekers were able to connect with 36 different employers at our annual Job Fair.

Finally, we invite you to share these stories with your family, friends, and acquaintances so that we might spread the word of Community Action across the region.

We hope to connect with our neighbors who may be in need of our services and with businesses and individuals who want to contribute—either through offering employment opportunities or tax-deductible donations—to lifting our home out of poverty.

Thank you for reading and please feel free to contact us anytime. We look forward to serving eastern Kentucky with you.

Weatherization helps lower energy bills

Lora Bryant of Floyd County has lived in her home for nearly 17 years, but began to have more and more trouble keeping her house warm.

Bryant explained that the rooms in the home didn’t heat equally and that in order to sleep in the bedrooms during the winter, extra heaters and blankets would be needed. “When you got up in the morning, the floor would be like ice,” she said. But the most troubling issues she found were a constant draft in the living room and monthly heating bills between $200 and almost $300.

Bryant saw a flyer in her local post office about Big Sandy Area Community Action Program’s Weatherization Assistance Program and thought that maybe she could get some help figuring out her home heating issues.

BSACAP Weatherization Assistance Program inspector Steve Mullins and his crew assessed the home and discovered that, in addition to the major draft, there was very little insulation in the attic and none at all under the home. Inspector Mullins explained that essentially warm air was escaping the house as fast as it was coming in. He calculated the correct amount of insulation required for the home and used a blower door to measure the airflow out the home.

The crew then got to work and added the proper amount of insulation to the attic and beneath the house. They sealed off the draft and also found worn insulation on the home’s duct work, which they replaced with better quality insulation.

The Weatherization Crew also ensured that Bryant had a working heating system and installed a carbon monoxide detector and smoke detector to improve the home’s safety. The crew also installed a CFM vent designed to improve air quality. Bryant also qualified for a refrigerator replacement that upgraded him to a more energy efficient model.

After the work was completed, the amount of warm air escaping the house was reduced by three times and Bryant’s electric bills steadily decreased. “It is comfortable all over this house now,” she said, adding that the Weatherization Crew completed the work on her home during the hottest time of the year and never complained. “They did such a thorough job and checked everything. They were such a good crew. I was totally amazed by what they did.”

The Weatherization Assistance Program is funded by the U.S. Department of Energy and administered by the Kentucky Housing Corporation.

Each year Big Sandy Area Community Action Program (BSACAP) is afforded the opportunity to present students in their service area with scholarships to help them attend college or vocational school. The scholarships are made possible through the Community Services Block Grant (CSBG). This year 15 people across Pike, Floyd, Johnson, Martin, and Magoffin Counties received a total of over $7,000 in funds to help them pursue their educational goals.

Johnda Marie Adams, of Pikeville, will be studying Dental Hygiene at Big Sandy Community and Technical College. Adam Crum, of Tomahawk, will be studying to become a Welding Technician at Big Sandy Community and Technical College. Cody Crum, of Inez, will be studying Optometry at the University of Pikeville. Landon Gillespie, of Melvin, will be attending Big Sandy Community and Technical College. Diana Hall, of Prestonsburg, will be working toward a degree in Business Management at Morehead State University. Caleb Harris, of Pikeville, plans to major in History and Political Science at the University of Pikeville. Jessica Hill, of Betsy Lane, will be studying Applied Science at Big Sandy Community and Technical College, Ashley Hunter, of Prestonsburg, will major in Criminal Justice at Eastern Kentucky University. Rodney James, of Pikeville, will attend the University of Kentucky and major in Finance and Accounting. Caitlin Little, of Pikeville, will be studying Nursing at Big Sandy Community and Technical College. Reaford May Jr., of Elkhorn City, will be studying Electrical Engineering at Big Sandy Community and Technical College. Megan Preston, of Warfield, will attend Morehead State University and major in Convergent Media and English. Evan Prince, of Lovely, will be studying Bio-Medical Science at Morehead State University. Jalah Quinn, of Pikeville, will attend Big Sandy Community and Technical College where she will study Communication and Social Media. Lezlie Roberts, of Virgie, will study Nursing at Big Sandy Community and Technical College.

Mike Howell, Executive Director of BSACAP, said, “Through these scholarships we are trying to give a little extra help for the expenses they might incur during the school year. We really applaud these students for making the choice to continue their education and we are grateful for the opportunity to encourage them on their way.”

Wanda Thacker, Deputy Director of BSACAP, explained that students were required to submit proof of financial need, college acceptance, and GPA, along with letters of reference and an essay explaining why they deserve the award. Thacker also noted the recipients’ progress through the school year would be tracked. She invited the students to return to BSACAP when they graduate if they wanted assistance with referrals or anything else that life might bring their way. “We believe

Floyd Countian beating the odds with WIOA

Stressful jobs and stressful situations can cause many of us to collapse under the pressure, but Floyd Countian Chavella Kelly has the skills to prioritize, stay positive, and reach out for a little help to keep her going, which is perfect for an aspiring trauma nurse. Kelly reached out to Big Sandy Area Community Action Program to help her stay on top of it all.

“I always wanted to be in the medical field,” she said. “I was a CNA [Certified Nursing Aid] straight out of high school.” When Kelly became pregnant with her daughter, she knew what her top priority was and she became a full-time stay-at-home mom.

After spending those important first years with her daughter, Kelly knew it was time to get back to school, so she enrolled in classes and applied to the nursing program at Big Sandy Community and Technical College. While balancing caring for her daughter and furthering her education, Kelly heard about a program offered through Big Sandy Area Community Action Program that could help her pay for school.

“I called as soon as my friend told me about it, and then I met with Trina about it,” she said. Trina Yeary is a Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act (WIOA) Career Advisor with Big Sandy Area Community Action Program. Career Advisors provide an array of services that help people re-enter the workforce or gain the skills for new, better jobs and careers. In addition to assistance to dislocated or underemployed adult workers, the agency also provides workforce services to at-risk youth and area employers. As a Career Advisor, Yeary works every day to help those in her region find gainful employment through job searches, retraining, or, as in Kelly’s case, working toward a college degree.

“It usually takes a long time when you’re trying to get in with programs. I mean, even with financial aid at school it takes forever,” Kelly said. “This was done and ready whenever I started school in August, so within a month, and all I had to do was set up an appointment with Trina, and then I gave her my school schedule and that was it.”

After her first semester back at school, Kelly was diagnosed with skin cancer.

“I had surgery in January, right after I started the second semester, but I went straight back. I was out for two weeks, and then I went straight back.”

“I think school for anybody in the nursing program would be hard, but the obstacles that Chavella has faced this semester—I think it’s amazing what she’s done,” Yeary said. “If she had come to me and said, ‘Hey, I can’t go to school this semester,’ I mean, that’s kind of what I expected, not just from her, but from anybody. She never once mentioned giving up,” Yeary said. A lot of people couldn’t pass the nursing program if that’s all they had going on, and she managed to pass the semester despite all of the odds.”

Kelly adds that she has had to undergo radiation treatments, the first of which was in the middle of her second semester.

“I had extremely supportive staff, our professors. We were able to record their lectures to where I didn’t really miss anything. I was allowed to make up everything,” she said. “The type of cancer I have is extremely curable, so I stayed extremely optimistic the whole time, even now.”

Kelly credits her success to the assistance she received from Yeary and Big Sandy Area Community Action Program.

Over 250 people in our communities received health services and information this year at Big Sandy Area Community Action Program (BSACAP) annual Community Health Fairs held in Allen, Paintsville, Inez, and Pikeville in July. The free event assisted area residents to connect with healthcare providers in the area.

Nearly 150 vendors ranging from local hospitals and health departments to family service organizations and addiction recovery centers from across the area helped BSACAP reach out to members of our communities and provide them with free health services and information.

This year, some of the services offered included free A1C blood sugar checks, blood pressure checks, COPD screenings, body mass index readings, diabetic foot screenings, and one-on-one assistance with signing up for Medicaid. The Kentucky Blood Center received 36 blood donations from Health Fair attendees. Twenty-five student-athletes received a free sports physical from Highlands Regional Medical Center. King’s Daughters Medical Center provided free EKGs and blood work to 27 attendees.

Local businesses offered outstanding door prizes this year, including tickets to the Newport Aquarium, the Kentucky Horse Park, and Lexington Legends baseball games.

Kim Vicars, BSACAP’s Community Service Block Grant Manager, explained that each year the organization conducts a survey of area citizens in order to learn about their most pressing concerns. Vicars stated that health has consistently ranked among the top five concerns for the last several years.

“This Health Fair is one way we are working to tailor our services to the specific needs of the communities we serve,” she said. “It helps us to reach out to some of the most vulnerable people in our community and provide them with information about the healthcare options available to them and the vital health services they may need.”

BSACAP Executive Director Mike Howell explained, “At BSACAP, we fight poverty and promote economic development by helping individuals and families in our area achieve self-sufficiency. We provide job and workforce services for people of all ages, college scholarships, the Garden Seed nutrition program, the Weatherization Assistance Program, and many other programs, but we know that the health of our citizens is the foundation of the educational and economic success of our region, and we want to work to ensure a strong and healthy workforce is available.”

The Community Health Fair is funded, in part, by the Community Services Block Grant made available by the Cabinet for Health and Family Services and the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

The Tug Valley Job and Resource Fair was held at Belfry High School on August 3rd. The event brought together employers and resource providers from both Kentucky and West Virginia to meet with people who reside along the states' borders.

Congressmen Hal Rogers (KY-5) and Evan Jenkins (WV-3) delivered remarks to the crowd regarding the opioid epidemic and the downturn in the coal industry, but also stated “We want you to stay here,” and “We are fighting for you.”

BSACAP Career Advisors provided onsite resume writing assistance and provided interview skills and job search tips.

“I love the people I work with. They are great to be around,” she said. “I feel more useful, which makes me feel a lot better. Changing your environment and getting up for work, it just gives you a purpose and something to look forward to.”

Jaynes said she would recommend the Senior Community Service Employment Program to others. “Go for it,” she said. “Age shouldn’t have a bearing on what you can do. We’re as old as we feel.”

anything like that. She makes sure everything’s done and smooth with school. That way, if I forget to turn in something, Trina’s like, ‘I need this.’”

Yeary said, “It’s not like coming into an office and just doing paperwork and stuff—[from the very beginning it’s not like that. I think we really take the time to get to know people and to know what they want to do. We try to make it all about them, and I think we really care about our people—that’s just who we are as Career Advisors.”

Facing a difficult program of study, caring for a toddler, working, and having cancer treatments, Chavella Kelly is still moving forward and creating a better life for herself and her family, with just a little push from Big Sandy Area Community Action Program.

BSACAP provides Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act (WIOA) career advising services in Floyd, Johnson, Martin, Magoffin, and Pike counties under contract with the Eastern Kentucky Concentrated Employment Program, Inc. (EKCEP).
